

The Pines Enduro never fails to deliver on action... Saturday's action at the Teagle Excavations ARB Pines Enduro always attracts a good crowd, with the Millicent Sand Buggy Club expecting spectator numbers to be up on previous years. "The crowd was five deep on the spectator mound and the car park on the hill was packed" said Murray Rogers, Clerk of Course.

The Pines historically gets a lot of local spectator support from Millicent and Mount Gambier, and this year they've come out in force to see 71 off road teams hit the track at Teagle's Quarry for the prologue and short course heats.

A new prologue format saw the field seeded into an outright start order, replacing the seeded class order previously used. "This club is always looking for ways to improve their event and this year we're trying an outright seeded prologue start. From all reports it's gone over really well with competitors; there wasn't the down time that you normally get between classes, so there was always something happening in front of the spectators".
